L. FINAL TEAM REFLECTION

What is the most significant improvement made since Part II?

Completing the end-to-end integration between the Study Vault web repository and the native Android mobile application through a unified RESTful JSON/stream API (/api/*.php), revocable mobile Bearer token authentication (mobile_tokens), 3-step school-record email OTP verification, and server-enforced watermarked PDF manuscript streaming.

What evidence best demonstrates that the application is functional and ready for demonstration?

An eligible ISU-Ilagan IT student or alumnus can verify their Student ID via a 6-digit email code, sign in on either Web or Android, search and filter approved theses across all 10 IT subject areas, read abstracts for free, activate a demonstration access plan (Research Access PHP 99/30d or Plus PHP 249/90d), and immediately view the watermarked PDF manuscript.

What important limitation, known issue, or technical debt remains?

Plan checkout intentionally operates in prototype/demonstration mode (PAYMENT_MODE = 'demo') without charging real cards or e-wallets, and client-side watermarks deter redistribution while external camera capture of a screen remains a physical limitation.

What did the team learn from testing, deployment, integration, or beneficiary validation?

We learned the importance of never trusting client-side role or subscription state—every protected manuscript request and API endpoint must independently validate authentication, account approval, and subscription expiration on the server.

What final action must be completed before the project can be considered fully submitted?

Conduct the final live demonstration with the course instructor and beneficiary representative and collect their signatures in Sections I, K, and N.
